United Way To Host Open House

United Way of the Eastern Upper Peninsula will hold a public open house Thursday, November 6, from noon to 1 p.m. at The Cedarville Inn in Cedarville.

United Way campaign committee members, staff, and board members will be on hand to share information and answer questions.

A light lunch will be served, followed by a program describing United Way impact areas, agency eligibility requirements, volunteer center programs and services, how to conduct workplace campaigns, and other information. Rep-resentatives from several United Way agencies that provide services in Mackinac County will also be on hand to educate those who attend about their programs.

This year the United Way campaign goal is $365,000 and campaign chairs are Tom and Stacey Swanson, with co-chairs Henry and Jaymie Guzzo. The United Way board of directors has expanded to include three representatives from Mackinac County: Michelle Walk, Rod Nelson, and Karen Litzner. Campaign volunteer Jerry Morningstar of Hessel will be assisting with campaign duties in parts of Mackinac County. The Mackinac County United Way Advisory Committee includes these people plus Terri Bush, Bucky McPhee, and Lori Pieri. Other volunteers are needed.

To assist in planning the lunch reservations are required. To make a reservation or for more information about United Way and the open house, call (906) 632-3700.

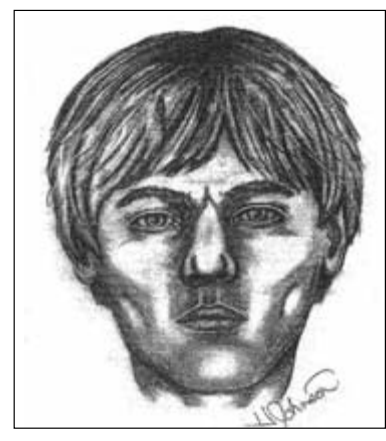

Police Seek Help in Identifying Man Found in U.P. 42 Years Ago

A new drawing has been released to help Michigan State Police identify a body found 42 years ago, in November 1966, in woods northwest of Trout Lake in Chippewa County.

Laboratory Technician Heather Johnson, a forensic artist, has prepared a sketch of the victim, believed to be a 23-year-old white male, 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds with brownish hair.

Attempts have been made to identify this person over the years. The man was born around 1943, had no dental work, and keys and clothing were found with the body. Early investigations identified the person as Native American and possibly from Canada. Another, later examination by Norman Sauer, a forensic anthropologist at Michigan State University, indicated the victim was of Eastern European descent.

Those who may have information are asked to contact the Michigan State Police in St. Ignace at 643-7584.

These police sketches show the unidentified man.

St. Ignace, Les Cheneaux, Mackinaw City Participate in 'Pure Michigan'

In St. Ignace, even though limited funding doesn't allow promoters to purchase the "featured" designation on the site, the boost in funding should help marketing efforts, said Visitors Bureau Director Lynne Piippo.

"We really appreciate that campaign. People who live in cornfields and concrete cities are just astounded by the views that we see here every day while we're hanging our laundry on the line," said Mrs. Piippo, referring to viewers of the television ads. The campaign's depiction of Michigan supplements local promotion efforts, she said.

"Through its Pure Michigan campaign, the state has provided many free opportunities to include our community's events and businesses on its Web site, which serves as a window to Michigan, allowing out-of-state visitors to take a peek at what we have to offer," said Amy Polk, commerce and tourism coordinator for Les Cheneaux Islands Area Tourist Association. "Our budget is very limited, so the opportunities we have through Pure Michigan are vital to maintain and expand our marketing."

In Mackinaw City, Mackinaw Area Tourism Bureau is hiking its advertising spending another 10% for next year, and is reaching out to new markets such as Cincinnati and Indianapolis, said its board chairman, Bill Bertchinger, who is hoping his agency's efforts, combined with the Pure Michigan campaign, will result in major payoffs for tourism next year.

"We've been monitoring the Pure Michigan campaign and we think it is a vital tool for all of us," he said.

Besides offering cost-share marketing opportunities, Travel Michigan sends tourism organizations leads from people seeking information about a region. Ms. Polk said this has resulted in two to six inquires to her office a week.

Travel Michigan, in cooperation with Midwest Living magazine, has also assigned and paid for writers and photographers to cover the Eastern Upper Peninsula for an upcoming Michigan Travel Ideas magazine that is published annually in association with Midwest Living. One million copies will be printed and paid for by Travel Michigan and will be distributed throughout the Midwest and beyond.

Michigan.org also allows events to be posted, free of charge, provides staff to assist tourist organizations with adding material onto the Web site, and offers a page that has a listing of other Web sites with the latest in tourism industry news.

EUP Great Start Schedules Parent Appreciation Workshop for Nov. 8
